

The Mission

Healthy Food for Hungry People

So much good food—billions of pounds each year—is thrown away in this country, sent to landfills or left to rot in fields, simply because it isn't pretty enough for the grocery store. Meanwhile, tens of millions of people in this land of plenty don't have enough to eat.

With the help of generous supporters like you, the Society of St. Andrew works day after day to keep fresh, healthy fruits and vegetables out of landfills—and shares that good food with hungry people, right here in the United States.

With your help, we work toward a world without hunger, knowing that blessed day is a long way off. Until then, the Society of St. Andrew will be putting nourishing food on the tables of our hungry brothers and sisters, meeting their basic needs—and offering hope for a better tomorrow.

“When I emigrated to America in 1976, I came with one suitcase and not much else. By the grace of God, I never went hungry.

Now I own my own home and have more than I need. I am dedicated to helping to feeding the homeless and hungry.”

—Mrs. Andrews

There is no reason for anyone in this land of abundance to be hungry. And because you care, hungry people have healthy food to eat, day after day. Your gifts right now make a real difference in so very many lives.

I'd love to talk with you, either in person or by phone, about how your commitments can be carried long into the future through any of the giving vehicles presented in this brochure.

We can also discuss specific programs and projects that you might find most meaningful to support through your estate planning.

Thank you for considering including the Society of St. Andrew in your legacy giving.

With you in faithful service,

Lynette Johnson
Executive Director

Please discuss your estate plans with your family as well as with an independent financial advisor and your attorney.
