Envisioning a world in which physical and spiritual hungers are met through God’s grace and abundance in Jesus Christ.

Mission

The Society of St. Andrew brings people together to harvest and share healthy food, reduce food waste, and build caring communities by offering nourishment to hungry neighbors.

Core Values

» Faith We are called to love God and love our neighbors as ourselves. This is reflected in all that we do. We demonstrate the power and effectiveness of a true Christian community in addressing critical human problems, particularly hunger.

» Compassion We believe in living a just lifestyle and in sharing our resources and the world’s with those whose basic needs are not being met.

» Stewardship We seek to make the most and best use of all resources, in a way that demonstrates competence, justice, and sharing.

» Service We are called to love, not just in words, but in deeds and in truth. This serves as the foundation for all that we do. We provide opportunities for others to serve, fostering renewal in people’s lives, in congregations, and in the communities in which we serve.

(∗) BOARD MEMBER TERM ENDED AT THE END OF 2020.
If there’s one word that sums up the Society of St. Andrew’s reflections on 2020—a year like no other—it is gratitude. Every time we felt the challenges were insurmountable, every time our energy flagged, YOU were there. Farmers, donors, volunteers, reaching out and offering to help. All of us at the Society of St. Andrew are profoundly grateful for your prayers, for your financial support, for your gifts of food, time, and talent. You make this ministry possible every single day, as you have for the past 40+ years.

When 2020 began, hunger and food insecurity had declined to their lowest levels in decades, affecting about 36 million people in this country. Though still way too many hungry people, numbers had been steadily declining for the last decade, and it felt like we were finally making progress. But the COVID-19 pandemic changed everything. By year’s end, 54 million people in this country were struggling to put food on the table; evictions were rising, and unemployment had yet to stabilize.

You, SoSA’s generous donors, responded to the national crisis by giving more, and giving more often. Your generosity allowed SoSA to double the quantity of food distributed in 2020, sharing about 138 million servings of food, reaching the tables of 19.7 million hungry people in the United States.

As you’ll read in the coming pages, half the food shared came from fields gleaned and from large loads of produce donated by farmers—in other words, about half the food shared came through SoSA’s usual channels, following COVID-safe protocols.

The other half came through SoSA’s participation in the USDA Farmers to Families (F2F) Food Box program. The USDA purchased food that would otherwise (in COVID times) have had no market, boxed it, and made transportation funds available to get boxes to every state, to meet increased hunger needs. SoSA partnered through all four 2020 rounds of the F2F program, using our time-tested “crop drop” model to handle last-mile logistics and truck-to-trunk distribution of 23 million pounds of USDA Farmers to Families food boxes. Week after week, all across the country, families waited in line for hours, sometimes from before dawn until afternoon for these food boxes, yet every greeting spoken, by volunteer or food recipient, was filled with gratitude and joy.

The pandemic isn’t over, even though it feels we’re rounding a corner. Be assured that the entire SoSA team is at work every day, seeing that healthy food is not wasted, but shared with people in greatest need. We are humbled and honored for the opportunity to do this work and so very, very grateful for your partnership in it.
OW, what a year this has been for all of us! As I step into the role of Chair of the Board of Society of St. Andrew, I know that we are blessed. With Lynette’s leadership, with our amazing staff, and with dedicated caring folks like you who give and serve, we all have only one goal in mind—provide as much fresh produce as possible for our neighbors in need. I am overwhelmed with pride. I know that everyone on the Board feels the same way. Our prayers are with you all that you and your families are SAFE and HEALTHY.

During this past year of uncertainty, you all never lost sight of the goal to feed more people. You never missed a beat. Your gifts and your service led to one of the best year’s SoSA has ever had.

In closing, we are thankful for every one of you. Our prayers for you and your families. May the Lord continue to bless you! Stay safe!

A SUSTAINABLE FUNDING MIX

IN 2020 FUNDING CAME FROM FOUR PRIMARY SOURCES

» Faith Community income: representing many denominations and faith communities from all 50 states. (19% of cash income)

» Individual income: from generous donors in all 50 states (26% of cash income)

» Foundation and Corporate income: grants and gifts from businesses and foundations across the U.S. (41% of cash income)

» Government income: grants from federal, state, and local governments (13% of cash income)

This diverse and strong funding mix is just part of the reason the Society of St. Andrew has been successful for 41 years, regardless of the general economic environment.

PROMOTING GOOD STEWARDSHIP

Our overarching operating principle is one of good stewardship. Just as we believe in good stewardship of our nation’s food resources, so also we believe in good stewardship of the financial resources that make this ministry possible. When you donate over 100 million servings of highly nutritious food with people in need at a cost of less than 5¢ per serving, every penny counts. That is why SoSA stays focused on essential program activity and does not get side-tracked in unrelated programs and initiatives. Good stewardship also keeps SoSA’s overhead costs low.

Programs

Potato & Produce Project

Broadly-focused and national in scope, the Potato & Produce Project transports large loads (10,000 pounds or more) of fresh fruits and vegetables from farms and packing houses to areas of greatest need around the country, often working with congregations and civic organizations through “crop drops” to bag and distribute this good food.

Seed Potato Project

Working throughout the Appalachian states (from Ohio to Tennessee), the Seed Potato Project shares seed potatoes each spring with low-income families who own their own land, but cannot afford to grow their own food. These seed potatoes provide an eight-fold yield at harvest, nourishing the family who planted them and their community.

Gleaning Network

Intensely-focused and hyper-local in operation, the Gleaning Network mobilizes tens of thousands of volunteers each year to glean food that remains after commercial harvest from fields or orchards within a few miles of their home. Most of this food (16+ million pounds a year) rides in volunteers' trunks, backseats, and pickup beds to nearby feeding agencies, where it is often served or shared with people in need the same day it was harvested!

Harvest of Hope

Promoting all of the Society of St. Andrew core values, Harvest of Hope — a mission trip program with emphasis on gleaning, hunger education, and advocacy—calls volunteers to deeper faith, greater stewardship, and a broader commitment to take action against hunger in their own communities. (Harvest of Hope was on hiatus in 2020 because of the Pandemic.)

(That's nearly 2.7 billion servings)
Commentators used the term “unprecedented” time after time in 2020, and so did we! As hunger and food need rose to unprecedented levels, hearts opened, and generosity grew beyond all expectations. Because of your great generosity, SoSA’s work expanded (doubled, in fact), making it possible for SoSA to serve a new, crucial role in 2020—food distribution through the USDA’s Farmers to Families Food Box Program, a CARES Act Program designed to get healthy food quickly to hungry families.

In response to an astonishing rise in the number of families seeking emergency food assistance during the 2020 COVID Pandemic, the USDA rapidly launched this new program, purchasing, boxing, and distributing fresh vegetables, fruits, dairy products, and meats on a massive scale. Nonprofits across the country stepped up to address last mile distribution, getting these food boxes into every community across the nation, directly into the hands of families in greatest need. Atlantic Newsday

“Regarding the COVID pandemic, the frontlines are just frantic. There’s a lot of pressure to rescue all the food we’re offered and engage all of the volunteers who want to serve, while strictly following CDC guidelines. Everyone knows the stakes. No one has all of the answers and it feels overwhelming.” - Kelly Stainner, SoSA staff (March 2020)

The Society of St. Andrew (SoSA) was positioned to respond with efficiency. Outdoor distributions, direct to communities of need, in hard-to-reach areas of the country, planned quickly, have been a routine part of SoSA’s operations since 1983. Decades of practice allowed rapid resource deployment for SoSA’s staff and volunteers.

SoSA’s 41 year track record in the hunger relief space, creating a broad and deep network of partner feeding agencies and ready volunteers, reaching most of the continental U.S., made it stand out as a capable partner to many providers. SoSA had the logistical know-how, creative problem-solving skills, extensive network, and dedicated donors to ensure an effective response during a global pandemic.
“I’LL NEVER FORGET SEEING THE LINES OF CARS SO LONG YOUCouldn’T SEE THE END. AS I TALKED TO PEOPLE RECEIVING THE FOOD, I LEARNED SOME PEOPLE LINED UP AT 5AM FOR THE DISTRIBUTION AT 8AM BECAUSE THEY ABSOLUTELY NEEDED THE FOOD…”

Through the USDA’s Farmers to Families (F2F) Food Box Program, more than 23 million pounds of good, fresh food was shared directly from farmers, through SoSA’s network, to thousands of communities across the country. This is in addition to the 23 million pounds of good food rescued through SoSA’s regular gleaning operations. None of this would have been possible without you.

This new USDA program was devised, established, and launched in a matter of weeks. This allowed a quick response for the millions of families who needed food when things seemed hopeless. While this program is still very new and full of opportunities for improvement, it came when the American people needed it most.

These USDA F2F Food Boxes began as a novel idea designed to address multiple problems caused by the coronavirus pandemic and quickly evolved into a solution to a broken link in the domestic food-supply chain. This program provided financial relief for farmers and helped millions of people who suddenly found themselves unable to provide for their basic food needs. The USDA covered the costs for purchase of agricultural products, the assembly of the boxes, the delivery to nonprofit organizations, and eventually, even some of the associated costs for “final mile distribution.”

SoSA’s network of grassroots partnerships was able to respond quickly and efficiently. The right teams, in the right places, with the right experience meant that 1 in every 150 boxes shared across the entire country was distributed by a SoSA network partner, with the help of SoSA’s logistical expertise.

Whether it was in Florida, the Midwest, or the Northeast, the scene was almost identical: lines of cars formed every morning before a distribution event, long before the sun rose. And often the food ran out that day before the line ended.

“The hardest part is when another pantry calls explaining how quickly the food boxes that we just delivered went and how they could desperately use more. It’s hard to clock out and go home at any point.”

- Kelly Stainner, SoSA staff

After each event, processes and procedures were assessed and adapted. There were more events and more families with access to healthy, nutritious food when they feared they might go without any food at all. Several groups and organizations came forward and led portions of this gigantic project. This scaled the impact even further. Volunteers, donors, and churches within SoSA’s network organized and led distributions in their communities so SoSA staff could lead simultaneous distributions in other locations around their states.

At each location, tens of thousands of pounds of good food were distributed in a matter of hours. On the rarest of occasions where there was food leftover after the line of cars disappeared, volunteers were able to easily identify underserved areas nearby, delivering the remaining food boxes onto the porches of families in great need.
Farmers were also blessed in this process. Each farmer, grower, and provider represents a business with employees and families who need to be fed as well. The F2F program ensured that farmers whose large-scale contracts had disappeared with the pandemic were paid for food they’d grown. That food, in turn, went into the F2F boxes and was used to feed hungry people, efficiently and effectively solving several problems at once.

This incredible work couldn’t have happened without you. Hours of service and partnership through SoSA touched the lives of families across this country. You made it possible for people to come together as a community by offering nourishment to your hungry neighbors.

“With your help, together we can build and grow a network of neighbors helping neighbors to continue to feed families in need in the days to come. Ending hunger is an audacious goal but your generosity makes me believe it’s possible.”

- Mykevia Jones, SoSA staff

Staff member Mykevia Jones speaks words of positivity and hope as she talks about the massive neighborly support in the quest to end hunger.

As we see the light at the end of the pandemic, all of us at SoSA are so grateful for the opportunity to reach so many more people with healthy food and make a greater impact through the Farmers to Families Program.
You Gave Generously

You gave when you were asked. You gave when the need rose at an alarmingly rapid rate. And then, you gave again, when you were asked again. Many donors gave out of a recognition of the abundance in their own lives, wanting others to have enough as well.

Regardless of your motivation, because you gave, 138.8 million servings of good food reached hungry families throughout the US through SoSA’s network. Together we shared more food than ever in 2020! Over 46 million pounds of healthy, nutritious food provided meals to families who might otherwise have gone without. Thank you for giving, so others might eat.

Your generous spirit was an overwhelming expression of love for your neighbors. When the world was at its darkest and things seemed hopeless for millions— you loved your neighbors as yourselves. You demonstrated the power and effectiveness of a true Christian community in addressing hunger.

Louise made her first-time gift to SoSA in 2020. Her donor journey began like many others— to address an urgent need. Like millions of Americans, Louise saw reports on the news of the growing number of hungry families. She also received a stimulus check. When she received it, she wasn’t sure how best to use the money and felt compelled to donate it to address the rising need. She contacted SoSA to find out how financial gifts make a difference and, as a result, decided to donate her stimulus dollars to SoSA.

Around the same time, a farmer donated an entire truckload of watermelons to SoSA. Volunteers and the distribution site were ready, but unexpectedly high freight costs meant the watermelon load would have to be canceled. Louise’s generosity became an answer to prayers. Her gift covered those transportation expenses, so the wheels, literally, were set in motion.

Louise, like so many others, went “all in” for SoSA in a most difficult year. Louise’s awareness of SoSA began with an interest in environmental conservation. It quickly grew into a passion for serving others and was sustained by a selfless desire to share abundance.

SoSA is privileged to have partnered with Louise and with you! In this country of indescribable abundance, even one family struggling to put food on the table is one too many.

“Hunger is a daily struggle for many people. For this reason, we are monthly donors to the Society of St. Andrew. Each month, money is automatically withdrawn from our bank and sent to this faith-based organization to share food with people in need. No one should go hungry or have to depend on appeals for our sympathy. It is a human right to eat.”

- Dan and Deborah Moseley

"I think of my monthly donation as an extension of my grocery bill. It extends our dining table to feed those whom I otherwise might not know, inviting them to share a meal. But God (with the help of SoSA and other providers) knows who needs these fresh offerings.”

- Diane Zehr

“God has blessed me financially beyond expectation. There are many, though, who are in “earnest wont of common necessaries.” (Charles Dickens, A Christmas Carol) Recently the government sent $600 to each person to help provide those common necessaries. My wife and I received $1,200. As we do not need the money to provide for ourselves, please accept this $1,200 donation on behalf of those who do…”

- note received from donor
You Touched the Lives of Real People

The millions of pounds of food shared in 2020 bear witness to the extraordinary levels of need caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. But the true measure of your impact is in the faces of people who received good food because of your support for SoSA.

Over 2,000 local feeding agencies in communities across the country received fresh, nutritious food in 2020 through SoSA’s network and partnerships.

Those millions of pounds of food went directly to individuals and families in need, to food banks, food pantries, soup kitchens, shelters, churches, daycare centers, senior living centers, assisted living facilities, refugee support centers, underserved communities, impoverished regions, rural areas, and more. Each serving of good food nourished a hungry body. Those servings of food also strengthened low-income communities by freeing local dollars for spending in the local economy.

You Built and Strengthened Communities

Your support trained, strengthened, and equipped volunteers, partners, recipient agencies, and informal community networks in meeting local food need. Thomasine’s story illustrates how one passionate community leader expanded her reach and impact on her local community, through partnering with SoSA.

“When volunteers deliver food, door-to-door, the people see proof somebody cares about them, during all this. But even if you can’t be physically present, you can still make a difference. You can make a call, send a text, or send an email—Be the change you want to see.”

- Thomasine Jackson, SoSA volunteer

Thomasine lives in Alabama, has a heart for serving her neighborhood. She loves volunteering to brighten someone’s day. She is a regular volunteer and community champion within SoSA’s Gleaning Network. She recruits and organizes teams of volunteers to help rescue and distribute as much food as possible, across her community.

Thomasine believes many people, in addition to experiencing physical hunger, are desperately in need of hope, encouragement, and healthy relationships. She believes sharing food is an essential and powerful mission because it shares more than calories—it shares love.
You Planted Seeds for the Future

Katie & Khaya are two young volunteers, in different regions of the country, whose lives were impacted by their time spent volunteering with SoSA.

While Katie had volunteered from time to time in the past, volunteering regularly wasn’t something she had ever considered. But when her college dismissed its students due to the pandemic, Katie returned home determined not to waste her time. She made a plan to volunteer with a nonprofit that she had heard about through family and friends—SoSA.

She attended one gleaning event, loved it, and ended up coming back every week. Not only did she feel like her service was needed in her community but she learned new things and made new friends. Katie’s family was personally affected by the pandemic-related furloughs and layoffs—her father is a staff member at Disney World™ and was furloughed very early in the pandemic.

Upon returning to college, Katie met with her academic advisor to discuss how she can add a special focus to her business major to be prepared to work in the nonprofit sector, after graduation. Katie’s summer of service showed her exactly how much need exists, even in her hometown.

Khaya’s story also shows how a person can be affected and their understanding grow through their time spent volunteering and serving the needs in their local community. Early in the summer of 2020, Khaya volunteered with SoSA planting tomato seeds at a community garden.

Khaya worked hard for several hours and went home feeling blessed. He enjoyed volunteering and planting seeds because he knew they would eventually provide tons of tomatoes for the community near his home. He returned to glean a corn field in July when most volunteers canceled due to the predicted inclement weather.

Khaya is not a “frequent flyer” volunteer. In fact, when he volunteered the first time, he only volunteered because his mom gave him no other choice. However, a simple morning of service grew into passion and enthusiasm for the mission to end hunger!

Khaya has grown to love serving his community in the mission to end hunger. His mom hopes seeds of compassion planted in his heart this summer continue to bear fruit as he grows into adulthood. She believes it’s critical that young people are given opportunities to serve their neighbors so they can grow up learning to love serving others.

“I’VE SEEN FIRSTHAND HOW THE SoSA MODEL IS EFFECTIVE BUT I BELIEVE A KEY FACTOR IN SoSA’S SUCCESS IS YOU! I BELIEVE YOUR GENEROSITY TRANSFORMS THE GIFT OF DONATED FOOD FROM A MEAL TODAY INTO A HOPE FOR A BRIGHTER FUTURE, FOR EVERY PERSON THAT RECEIVES GLEANED FOOD.”

- MYKEVIA JONES, SoSA STAFF

Over 2,000 local feeding agencies across the United States received fresh, nutritious food in 2020 through SoSA’s large network and partnerships. As a new year begins, SoSA’s network is poised to respond to the increasing needs of the coming year—it couldn’t happen without you!

Legacy Partners

Twenty-two individuals and couples have chosen to become Legacy Partners with Society of St. Andrew. Each has included SoSA in their will or trust so they can continue to feed hungry people beyond their own lifetime. We are grateful for their commitment and support. Please contact us if you are interested in becoming a Legacy Partner.
